

WAGE SUBSIDIES

Recruit your new staff through Designer Life and you may be eligible for a wage subsidy of up to $10,000*

The government funded wage subsidy scheme is an incentive to assist businesses with hiring and retaining eligible participants in ongoing and sustainable roles. Wage Subsidies can assist employers to offset some of the initial costs associated with hiring a new employee who may require additional support to secure the job placement.

How could a wage subsidy help your business?

- Workforce Australia's wage subsidies offer financial assistance that will support your new employee as they settle into their new role.
- Wage subsidies could help to build your business and give you greater flexibility in your hiring options.
- Wage subsidies are for new and ongoing employment positions.
- They can be for full-time, part-time, casual, or even traineeships or apprenticeship positions.

Incentives for hiring and retaining eligible individuals

- Wage subsidies up to a maximum of $10,000* may be available to businesses that hire eligible job seekers into ongoing jobs. There are conditions, so it's important that you speak with our team.
- If you fill an ongoing position with us, a wage subsidy may be able to help with some of the initial costs of hiring new employees, and to help ensure their employment success.
- Other forms of assistance may also be a good fit, and we have additional services we can offer, including nationally recognised accredited training for workers, or developing a pre-employment training program.

The best place to start is to contact our expert team, who can suggest the best option to suit you and your new employee.

Eligibility guidelines apply, please speak to a Designer Life team member for more information.

Workforce Australia
Employment and Skills Services

Designer Life
EMPLOYMENT • TRAINING • CAREERS

Want to learn more about
wage subsidies?
CLICK HERE

For more information visit www.designerlife.com.au or call (07) 3333 2055

Email your interest to wfa@designerlife.com.au and our team will be in touch!